

Fine Art Connoisseur

THE PREMIER MAGAZINE FOR INFORMED COLLECTORS

OUT & ABOUT

On August 29, 700 people gathered at the R.D. Scinto Enterprise Corporate Park in Shelton, Connecticut, to unveil a 16-foot-high sculpture of hand-textured stainless steel – artist Babette Bloch's interpretation of Leonardo da Vinci's iconic Vitruvian Man drawing. Commissioned six years ago, the project reflects Bloch's love of art and science and joins other large sculptures on a 65-acre campus of residential and commercial buildings.

Patron R.D. Scinto and sculptor Babette Bloch stand before her re-imagining of Vitruvian Man. Photo: Marc Mellon

